After the reading the business-like way in which it had been done and instanced the method employed in the actual framing of the bill by obtaining the statutes of five is states and by taking the best from each, compiling the bill as presented Mrs. Mitchell, herself a member of the committee, told of the work done in obtaining and classifying the prison statistics for women prisoners. The actual cost to the state for board only, for these women was for one year $12,000, and for court proceedings, commitment and fines over $20,000 additional, the latter amount being of course a total loss to the state. The hearing at Hartford was mentioned and the great necessity for this institution was emphasized.

Mrs. Norton then introduced Mrs. Frederick H. Sykes, who attended the convention of the Congressional Union and National League in Washington, held March 1 to 4 and who spoke on that subject. ### Tells how to stop LOSS OF HAIR AND START NEW GROWTH

Reference was made yesterday to the popularity of the turban this season. It was Mrs. Vernon Castle who made the Egyptian turban so conspicuously tion of the board.

Rumors of friction between the president of the Connecticut College for Women and the trustees have been prevalent for a long time. About a year ago the matter of asking him to resign was brought up by members of the board of trustees, but it was decided to defer such action.

There is no complaint by the trustees of Professor Sykes' work as an educator. Indeed, his high standing in that particular is admitted. But the board alleges lack of tact, impracticability and extravagance on his pert in the management of the institution.

During the erection of the college buildings and during the first year of the college existence President Sykes was given practically full charge. His management was not deemed satisfacban but an exceedingly becoming one.
One of the most striking designs seen, and this, too, was on the turban order, was a Gage hat in black lisere, rounded crown, with a burnt estrich fancy on the double rolled brim—a hat which would attract attention and additional street attention an management was not deemed satisfac-tory by the trustees. The latter claim they had to settle seven or eight threatened suits at law brought by miration among a thousand, as so ferent and so distinguished.

Tapestry Sive Liked.

The turban appeared again in a rolling design of Georgette crepe in the favored sand tint, with straw facing of blue and dashing Mercury wings of the same well liked tint, which this year is called tapestry blue.

A charming foliage hat, still on the turban order, had its crown of pansies, its brim of foliage and was finished with a natty tied how of green ribbon.

However, all the models brought forward this spring are not small al-About this time the trustees began to circumscribe the president's authority. Irritation between the board of trustees and the president then arose and constantly increased. The latter was very persistent in trying to carry out his ideas and policies and his persistency and lack of adaptability to the trustees' wishes led to a wider and wider breach.

The trustees finally delegated their power to an executive committee con-

The trustees finally delegated their power to an executive committee consisting of Frank V. Chappell, William H. Reeves and Mayor Rogers of New London, with power to undertake the business management of the institution. This committee has not been able to get along with the president and the president has not been able to get along with the committee.

So thoroughly did this friction finally permeate the board of trustees that it became the practice to hold board immeetings at which the presilent was not invited. At last the executive committee ignored the frequent communications which he sent to its chairman.

mever accepted. It is said other members of the board have also threatened to resign.

The vote passed by the trustees was drawn, it is reported, by ex-Governor Baldwin, who is a member, and is so worded that unless President Sykes' resignation is forthcoming his incumbency will cease at the end of the prepent academic year.

It is alleged that President Sykes will make a statement to the public through the press of his side of the situation. No matter how strong a case he puts up, it is quite apparent the trustees will adhere in their determination to find a successor to him. It is believed President Sykes will claim that the executive committee has been guilty of dilatoriness and incompetency, and that he has been hampered and interfered with in the direction of the institution. Also that he has been refused opportunity to plead his own case before the board and that his recommendations and communications to the executive committee have been unheeded and often ignored. That there is a personal animus behind the movement to remove him from office will also, it is believed be one of his charges.

When President Sykes was asked to give in his resignation he laid the matter before the faculty of the college, and it is understood that the members all signed an agreement to resign in a body if President Sykes was removed. Since then Professor Osburn has resigned to accept another position, and it is stated other members of the faculty have changed their point of view. That the situation is unfortunate for the Connecticut College for Women cannot be gainsaid. Unless speedy settlement of the matter is made and a new college head secured the growth and value of the institution as an educational factor may be seriously checked. Its progress has been so marked and applications for admission continue so great, however, that the board of trustees feel no permanent harm will result from a change in its chief official.

Night. Wednesday night in the evangelistic ampaign at the First Baptist church Evangelist Linden was once more at his best in the sermon he preached on the subject Man's Accountabilit, to God. He used the text found in Rom. ished with a natty fied bow of green ribbon.

However, all the models brought forward this spring are not small although the popular little hat, it is predicted, will linger during the season.

Large Shapes Good.

One beautiful shape shown was a Gainsborough in the favored charlotte russe shade, of Milan hemp. A rich ostrich fringe finished the edge, caught with a single rose. The final touch was given by a French bow of picot edge ribbon.

One of the season's real novelties is a violet hat with violet bag to match, each dainty enough to win Miladi's favor on sight. The hat has for its sole effective decoration a great American Beauty rose at the side front.

Others who would like to join the chorus are asked to come promptly, because there is a lot of work to do. Wait, Linden's chorus leader is going to teach them De Brewer's Big Hosaes, one of the special features of the program for Saturday night, and this song will take time, with other songs, stunts and yells that are to be taught. bine style with utility and with speed in dressing, the clever ones have devised this season the coat-dress, which at first view appears to be just the regulation light weight coat for early spring wear. Closer inspection reveals the fact that the coat waist closes with buttons or loops and that the skirt may be closed the entire length with snaps, turning the fivwing coat into a securely buttoned and hooked dress, not differing essentially from any one-piece frock.
